General John A. Wickham
Chief of Staff
United States Army
Washington, D.C. 20310

John:

During our November breakfast session, you noted the need to help the military in Latin American countries to counter terrorism and subversion and asked if there was anything we could do. I'd like to let you know where our efforts stand.

Our next step will be to meet in Washington with representatives of concerned US military elements -- I understand you have agreed to name one -- to design a specific pilot program and determine how best to convey this concept to the [redacted]

Upcoming government transitions and elections [redacted] may slow implementation a bit, but I trust that our people will work closely together on this.

Sincerely,

John N. McMahon
